Lahey not a predator: Doc

► Pedophile is defined as someone attracted to children 13 or under, but ex-bishop is attracted to male teens aged 14-17, expert says

JESSICA

@METRONEWS.CA

A former Roman Catholic Bishop caught with child pornography at the Ottawa International Airport in September 2009 isn't a pedophile, a forensic psychiatrist told a court on Monday.

Raymond Lahey is, however, sexually attracted to male teens, which is classified as hebephilia, said University of Ottawa forensic psychiatry chief Dr. John Bradford, who has examined Lahey. Lahey also has significant sado-masochistic interests, said Bradford.

Bradford testified there is little to no chance the former bishop would commit a sexual or violent "hands-on" offence if released.

However, Bradford said there is no way to scientifically determine the chances of Lahey reoffending by breaking child-pornography laws.

Hebephilic interest alone is not an indication that Lahey is a risk to society, Bradford said in response to a question from Lahey's lawyer, Michael Edelson.

"A lot of normal people show that," Bradford said.

Bradford said a visit by Lahey to Thailand is a concern because it is a location of "child sexual activity," but he does not know if Lahey has ever had sexual contact

SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS with a child

Lahey looked much thinner than when he appeared in court in May.

His lawyer, Michael Edelson, will be asking that he be given the mandatory minimum one-year jail sentence, with a two-for-one time credit for the seven-and-a-half months he has spent in pre-sentence custody.

If he agrees with the defence on both issues, Lahey will be eligible for probation.

The federal government ended the two-for-one practice with legislation that came into effect Feb. 22, 2010. Lahey was charged in September 2009, so his lawyer Michael Edelson is arguing the new legislation should not apply.

The crown is asking for an 18-22-month jail sentence, with the time already served considered "straight time" because the new legislation was already in effect when Lahey voluntarily turned himself in prior to his sentencing hearing. The crown is expected to present sentencing arguments in court on Tuesday.

How to Get the Price You Want (and Need)

OTTAWA – When you decide to sell your home, setting your asking price is one of the most important decisions you will ever make. Depending on how a buyer is made aware of your home, price is often the first thing he or she sees, and many homes are discarded by prospective buyers as not being in the appropriate price range before they're even given a chance of a showing. Your asking price is often your home's "first impression", and if you want to realize the most money you can for your home, it's imperative that you make a good first impression. This is not as easy as it sounds, and pricing strategy should not be taken lightly. Pricing too high can be as costly to a homeseller as pricing too low. Taking a look at what homes in your neighbourhood have sold for is only a small part of the process, and on its own is not nearly enough to help you make the best decision. A recent study, which compiles 10 years of industry research, has resulted in a new special report entitled "Pricing Your Home: How to Get the Price You Want (and Need)". This FREE report will help you understand pricing strategy from three different angles. When taken together, this information will help you price your home to not only sell, but sell for the price you want. To order your FREE copy of this report visit www.RightHomePricing.com or call 613-788-7438 for a 24/7 recorded message.

Federal layoff fears crimping Christmas sales in Ottawa

► Drop in sales dovetails with findings from November CRG Consulting survey that found a record 29.3 per cent of respondents planning to spend less on Christmas

JOE LOFARO
@METRONEWS.CA

Fear of recession and looming government layoffs have many people in Ottawa spending less this holiday season, the Ottawa Chamber of Commerce (OCC) says.

Erin Kelly, executive director of the chamber, said there is a significant drop in sales this holiday season, despite a solid economy and increased emphasis on Black Friday promotions.

Retailers throughout the city were polled about holiday sales to date and 86 per cent said they have worsened compared to last year, according to Kelly.

"When we look at where it's worse, it's typically in small businesses, boutique shops," said Kelly.

Fear of cutbacks in one of the region's largest employers is holding people back, she said, adding that if the federal government must slim down, it needs to happen quickly.

"The fear is causing as much damage as the austerity itself," she said. "If you let it linger over three years, then we're going to have that fear for three years. We need to mitigate that uncertainty."

Some boutiques on Bank Street know all too

► Nadia Gelbman, co-owner of Carmel Art Gallery on Bank Street, said she has seen a drop of holiday sales by about 40 per cent this year and now has to slash prices a little earlier than usual.

well what Kelly is referring to and are noticing a significant slump this year compared to 2010.

Nadia Gelbman's Carmel Art Gallery has been around for more than 20 years, and this holiday season she saw a 35 to 40 per cent drop in sales. A sign promoting a 20 per cent discount on custom frames sat next to a wall of frame samples Monday afternoon while the owners talked with a customer.

"Would you believe that? In December?" said Gelbman. "We don't usually ever put that sign around this time."

When asked why customers are looking for cheaper items, she said, "They're struggling like all of us. There's a lot of layoffs. Who would think about buying luxurious "Last year we kind of decided that we would do it this way this year and because of the economy it's a good thing we decided to start that."

items?"

The manager of Boutique Le Papillon, also on Bank Street, had to pull out her 40- to 50-per-cent-off sale sign early, too, for her collection of women's clothing.

Her store has been in Ottawa for more than 30 years, and Friday was the first time she had to advertise her annual January sale in December.

Young family safe but loses home to fire

HOUSING CO-OP. A woman and her three children were forced to flee their row house when fire broke out in their living room Monday.

Ottawa fire spokesman Marc Messier said no one was injured in the blaze and the woman and her kids, aged one, two and five, are being relocated to a different unit in the not-for-profit housing co-op run by the Kanata Baptist Church.

Heavy smoke caused $115,000 worth of damage to the interior and contents of the home, the fire service estimates. The fire broke out just after 11 a.m. and was under control by 11:19, firefighters say.

"We're still looking into the cause of the fire," said Messier. ● METRO

OSGOODE. A 26-year-old Montreal man is facing an impaired-driving charge after police say he crashed his subcompact car into a parked SUV before careening his vehicle into a house in Osgoode early Monday morning. Paramedics said the man wandered away from the accident scene with a large gash in his head looking for help at a neighbouring house. Paramedics said the man lost a significant amount of blood but was stabilized before being taken to hospital. Mohamed Mousavi Zadeh is facing a single count of impaired driving, police say. ● METRO

"It's one of those classic stories that everyone knows about," said Julie Tamiko Manning, who plays Nancy in the production. Nancy, a street thief in a gang, takes Oliver in and tries to protect him. Tamiko said people connect with the universal themes in the play and its social message about economic inequality.

"People have a real love of musicals," she said.

Curbing health spending

► Federal Tories new plan to cut back health-transfer payments leaves some provincial ministers visibly angry

GEOFF HOWE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

► Federal Finance Minister Jim Flaherty, centre, speaks to Bank of Canada Governor Mark Carney prior to a provincial, territorial and federal finance ministers meeting in Victoria on Monday.

There was little Christmas goodwill spirit Monday as a meeting between provincial and territorial finance ministers and their federal counterpart ended in angry words.

Provincial finance ministers said they were astonished after federal Finance Minister Jim Flaherty “imposed” a new plan for how health money will be transferred to the provinces.

Flaherty said health transfers will continue to flow at the same six-per-cent increase rate they have been, but by 2018, the increase will drop to be tied to the rate of nominal GDP, which is the measure of economic growth including inflation.

ister Dwight Duncan.

Duncan said his colleagues were all shocked at Ottawa’s unilateral decision.

“He put the document in front of us and said this is how it’s going to be.”

► Flaherty announced Monday new health spending investments of $178 billion over five years.

► He said even when transfers drop to be tied to the nominal GDP rate, Ottawa is guaranteeing provinces the funding will never dip below a three-per-cent increase.

there has “obviously” been some concern among provinces.

He said his provincial and territorial counterparts were briefed about Ottawa’s plans at a dinner last night.

“We do need to talk about the way forward in terms of being fiscally responsible, not only at the federal level but across the country, all the governments,” said Flaherty.

North Koreans mourn 'dear leader'

► Kim Jong Il died of a heart attack on Saturday ► World waits to see how his power will be transferred

North Koreans marched by the thousands on Monday to their capital's landmarks to mourn Kim Jong Il, many crying uncontrollably and flailing their arms in grief over news of their "dear leader's" death.

North Korean state media proclaimed his 20-something son Kim Jong Un a "great successor," while a vigilant world watched for any signs of a turbulent transition to the untested leader in an unpredictable nation known to be pursuing nuclear weapons.

South Korea's military went on high alert in the face of the North's 1.2-million-strong armed forces following news of Kim's death after 17 years in power.

U.S. President Barack Obama agreed by phone with South Korean President Lee Myung-bak to closely monitor developments.

On the streets of the North Korean capital, Pyongyang, people wailed in grief, some kneeling on the ground or bowing repeatedly. Children and adults laid flowers at key memorials.

The death could set back efforts by the United States and others to get Pyongyang to abandon its nuclear-weapons ambitions, because his son, Kim Jong Un — as an untested successor — may seek to avoid any perceived weakness as he moves to consolidate control.

No threat of Christmas strike: Pilots

The Air Canada Pilots Association says travellers do not have to worry about a strike over the busy

Christmas season. The union group issued a statement to that effect. Pilots aren't in a legal strike po-

YOUR PAST REARS ITS UGLY HEAD ON FACEBOOK

SHE SAYS ...

JESSICA NAPIER
METRO

Everybody hates change, especially us over-entitled Facebook users. Whenever the developers at the omnipresent social networking site make even the slightest tweaks, a large percentage of the 800 million active users become a seriously whiny bunch. And while modifications to privacy settings are a completely legitimate concern, you have to wonder if the digital uproar over every little page layout alteration is really all that necessary.

So when Mark (King of the Internet) Zuckerberg announced that Facebook would be overhauling the entire site and introducing its new Timeline feature, all kinds of Internet hell broke loose. The angry masses took to their keyboards to protest about the changes in fuming status updates, ironically using the very medium they're criticizing to complain about it. How very meta right? Somewhere, Marshall McLuhan is smiling.

Once upon a time, Facebook sold itself on connecting people, but the new feature (which finally launched worldwide last week) reveals what the site has really been about all along: vanity.

"And remember all of those lost photos from your fat years that were once buried in ancient albums? Well now they're just a click away!"

More visual and customizable, Timeline lets you play curator in a museum of your own digital history. The scrapbook-like interface means users can upload not one but TWO profile photos, enabling a more two-dimensional form of narcissism. So now you can post that here-I-am-drunk-at-a-bar-throwing-up-offensive-hand-gestures snapshot juxtaposed against a wide-angle photograph from your trip to Southeast Asia last year. All of which to prove to your friends that you might actually have some substance.

More importantly, Timeline's neatly organized yearly catalogue makes taking a walk down memory lane that much easier. Us early adopters (I've been sharing my own mundane personal details since November 2005), we can't resist the temptation to jump back and forth throughout the years, reliving our not-so-distant past through old conversations and tagged photos.

Remember when you signed all your wall posts with your name at the bottom because it was maybe kind of like an email? How silly. And remember all those lost photos from your fat years that were once buried in ancient albums? Well now they're just a click away!

Yes there's plenty to discover on Facebook in the age of Timeline. But before you publish your digital autobiography, you might want to take a moment to edit those posts from the years before you accepted your mom's friend request. After all, Facebook is the one place where life's most cringe-worthy moments can be deleted for good.

It was a sunny day in Parisian district Étienne Marcel. Moments before I took this shot, I was thinking to myself how lucky it is for a photo lover to roam the streets of Paris. All of a sudden, I heard children playing, went around the corner, saw the children having fun, got on my knees and quickly shot the photo.

The prize is a trip to any Metro city in the world. Where do you plan to go?

"This image takes us all back to that childlike freedom when none of us had a care or worry in the world. A delightful reminder of the joys of youth. You can almost hear their cheers!"

Best and worst of 2011

METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

The Best

1. Hugo

Whether in 3D or not, Martin Scorsese's tribute to childhood and the early days of cinema dazzles and enchants — thanks in no small part to newcomer Asa Butterfield as the titular orphan keeping the clocks in a Paris train station running.

2. Shame

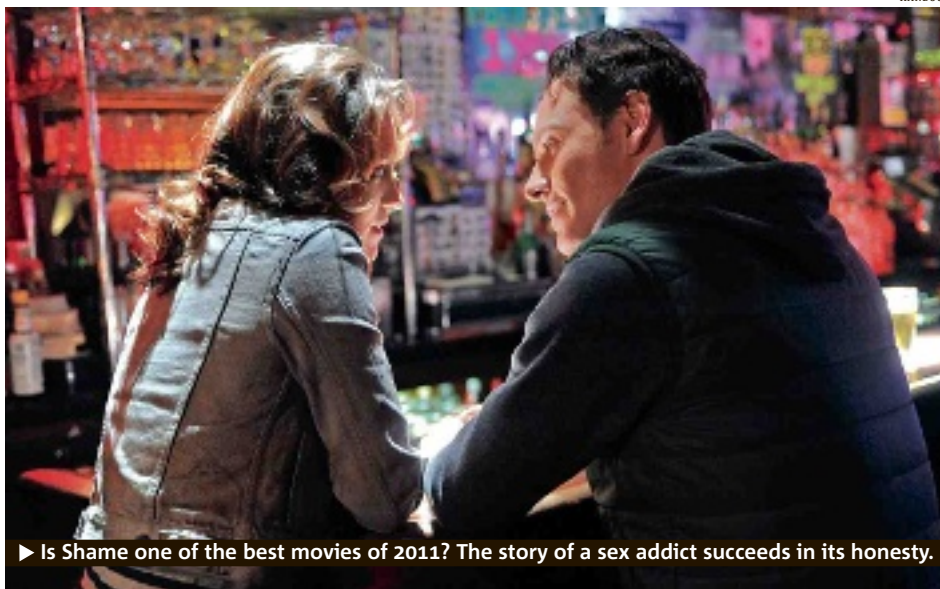

All nudity jokes aside, Michael Fassbender turns in one of the most powerful performances of the year as man feeding his sex addiction while trying to keep the rest of life at arm's length. A bummer of a film, to be sure, but it's a more honest and unflinching look at life than audiences have seen in a long time.

3. Beginners

A sweet and crafty film, Mike Mills' semi-autobiographical tale about a man (Ewan McGregor) dealing with his 75-year-old father (Christopher Plummer) coming out of the closet is quite simply a thing of beauty.

4. Like Crazy

Fair warning: This film is trying to break your heart — and it succeeds, thanks to frank and risky improvised performances by Felicity Jones and Anton Yelchin as young lovers who make stupid but whole believable decisions for the sake of love. Quietly devastating.

5. Weekend

A startling debut from British filmmaker Andrew Haigh that chronicles the meeting and subsequent three-day romance of two men in elegant, true-to-life frankness.

The Worst

1. J. Edgar

There were arguably worse films this year — just check further down this list — but Clint Eastwood's simultaneously too subtle and clumsily loud biopic fails more spectacularly than the rest. Given the Oscar-winning talent involved, the artless melodrama of J. Edgar is particularly startling.

2. Waiting for Forever

It's not nice to pick on smaller films, but this indie gem was so egregious it demands mention. Its greatest offence? Playing stalking and mental illness off as cute rom-com behaviour.

3. New Year's Eve

A romantic comedy Death Star that can't hide its cynicism, the movie did manage to sneak in Sarah Jessica Parker being introduced by the sound of horse hooves, so it's not a total loss.

4. Larry Crowne

A completely tone-deaf and sexless romantic comedy, featuring Tom Hanks and Julia Roberts doing their best approximation of "everyday people" — and showing just how out of touch they are.

5. The Twilight Saga: Breaking Dawn — Part 1

Criticizing the Twilight franchise is a futile enterprise, of course, but this latest entry — half a book stretched out far longer than the story can support — brings something new to the series' list of offences: It's unbearably boring. Also, no title should need that much punctuation.

Jeremy Renner gets some action

► Oscar-nominated actor channels inner action hero in MI4

JÉRÔME VERMELIN
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

After Oscar nominations for the dramas The Hurt Locker and The Town, actor Jeremy Renner did what any self-respecting Californian would do: Take roles where he could blow stuff up in big-time action movies. Besides this week's Mission: Impossible — Ghost Protocol, opposite Tom Cruise, he's got next year's Hansel and Gretel: Witch Hunters, plays Hawkman in The Avengers and takes over for Matt Damon (as a new character) in The Bourne Supremacy.

"Suddenly, the offers came streaming in," he says of his life, post Academy Awards.

In Mission: Impossible 4, he plays Brandt, an analyst for the Ministry of Defense who joins Tom Cruise's Ethan Hunt in order to put a stop to the elaborate plans of a terrorist. "The action is ongoing, but I wanted my character to be credible," insists the actor.

Renner is also full of praise for Cruise, his producer and co-star in the movie. "Sometimes he came across like this super experienced guy, paying attention to every single thing happening on set. Other times, he would be like a teenager ... ready to take on the craziest of stunts."

Genre: Drama

Director: David Fincher

Stars: Daniel Craig, Rooney Mara, Stellan Skarsgard

Sweden and director David Fincher were apparently made for each other. In the English-language version of the Girl with the Dragon Tattoo, Fincher certainly makes the most of his stark locations, with the wintry scenes almost in black and white. The man just knows how to move a camera, with even pans across quiet hallways and motorcycles zipping around curves a feast for the eyes.

The real reason to see the film, though, is Rooney Mara as rough-edged computer hacker and ward of the state Lisbeth Salander. She stalks the frame, hitting both self-assured power and self-doubting vulnerability naturally.

Mara can do more with one quiet stare than most actresses in Hollywood can with their whole bodies. Her counterpart, Daniel Craig as disgraced journal-

Sort out the naughty from the nice

METRO WORLD NEWS IN BOSTON

Michael Bublé, Christmas

Naughty: The biggest problem with this album is that once you hear it, you'll have to admit that you like Michael Bublé. But if the people you're telling have heard Christmas, then they'll go easy on you.

Nice: Bublé is silly, classy, and so right on-key. Plus, he re-imagines almost every song on this album. Sure, it's a little weird to hear Santa Baby as a vaguely homoerotic May/December come-on, but his torch song treatment of Mariah Carey's All I Want For Christmas Is You unearths a real longing that's missing in Mimi's version.

She & Him, A Very She & Him Christmas

Naughty: M. Ward's guitar playing is as beautiful as ever and Zoey Deschanel's voice is like the moon on the breast of the new-fallen snow, but it would be nice if there was at least one original track to spice up this 12-song collection. If you're not listening closely to them

playing these standards, you might think you're listening to one really long song.

Nice: She & Him switch the she and him roles on Baby It's Cold Outside, so Zoey Deschanel is the one persuading M. Ward to stay just a little bit longer. This long overdue update makes the 1936 song about 50 per cent less date-rapely.

Eldridge Rodriguez, Christmas on the Allston-Brighton Line

Naughty: The major downfall of this three-song EP is that it's only a three-song EP.

Nice: The way that E.R. integrates pre-existing holiday lines into his originals is effortless. "I've got my records on, but all I play is Silent Night," he sings on Baby I'm Alone Tonight (Christmas Time). And though his narrator is certainly having a blue Christmas, there's a playfulness to the presentation, evident from the title of the song Christmas Eve (At Old Country Buffet).

Scott Weiland, The Most Wonderful Time of the Year

Naughty: The first half of this album finds the Stone Temple Pilots singer sounding like a drunk who would be featured on the gag-reel of the American Idol auditions episodes.

Nice: As the album goes along, Weiland sobers up, finds his footing and dresses up standards like What Child Is This and O Holy Night in jazzy and island rhythms, respectively.

Mariah Carey & John Legend, When Christmas Comes

Naughty: This song from Mariah's 2010 album, Merry Christmas II You, was rolled out as a single last month. With its department store horns and not-so-smooth R&B groove, the tune sounds like it was recorded for a made-for-basic-cable-television movie. There are little sleigh bells in the recording and the lyrics are cringe-worthy, with lines like "I can't wait to unwrap your love," mixed with a light "Jesus is the reason for the season" reference.

Nice: The album artwork is actually pretty cool, made to look like a well-worn record cover in the tradition of the Carpenters.

Lady Gaga, A Very Gaga Holiday

Naughty: This four-song EP, culled from her A Very Gaga Thanksgiving TV special, is only 25 per cent seasonal.

Nice: Only Mother Monster would have the audacity to add another verse to White Christmas. It's a stupid verse about her "dreaming of a white snowman," but it's kind of funny and her voice is right on.

Midnight in Paris
Genre: Comedy
Director: Woody Allen
Stars: Owen Wilson, Rachel McAdams, Kathy Bates

🌟🌟🌟 In Woody Allen's Midnight in Paris, the City of Lights is a leading lady, shot with reverence by cinematographers Darius Khondji and Johanne Debas who depict it with the rapture of lovers. But don't think this film is merely a delicious travelogue. Allen is musing on the folly of nostalgia, which seduces us with the thought that life must have been better in the past. It's an affliction that has struck Gil (Owen Wilson) of Paris in the 1920s, the Jazz Age, when he presumes the words flowed as easily as champagne. Gil finds himself in Paris with his fiancée, Inez (Rachel McAdams), and her wealthy, shallow parents. Faced with another boring evening with Inez and her pretentious friends, Gil begs off to go for a walk. Wandering off his intended path, Gil finds himself somewhat lost just as a nearby clock strikes 12 and a vintage Peugeot rolls up to the curb. Its passengers beckon Gil to join them. Magical and dreamy, Midnight in Paris will take you on a trip you didn't bargain for.

Margin Call
Genre: Drama
Director: J.C. Chandor
Stars: Zachary Quinto, Stanley Tucci, Kevin Spacey

🌟🌟 You don't have to understand the niceties of asset-backed commercial paper to enjoy the boardroom thriller Margin Call, the fast-moving feature debut from writer/director J.C. Chandor. Set over two tense days and one very long night at a Wall Street investment firm very like the late Lehman Brothers, Margin Call is a realistic take on what happens when high-flying money speculators suddenly hit ground. Director Chandor made the right decision focusing his lens on the people — not the numbers — of the financial crisis. This is a Greek tragedy wearing pin-stripes.

After damaging the decor in her $27,000 a month New York City townhouse, Courtney Love has been evicted, according to the New York Post.

"I was horrified by what she had done. The walls that had been hand-painted and glazed were ruined, covered in damask wallpaper and ice-blue paint," the owner, Donna Lyon, says of Love, who is reportedly two months behind on rent as well.

And that's after starting a fire in the master bedroom in June.

"I got a call from her accountant, who said, 'Miss Love is fine,' which I was glad to hear," Lyon says.

LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

There are so many temptations at this time of year.

Whether it's the treats that constantly seem to be on offer at work, the huge family dinners, or junk food to accompany a movie, the holidays are famous for luring us into eating and drinking too much.

Eggnog, shortbread, gravy, and plenty of booze — beware.

The good news, according to Kim Arrey, a dietitian and nutrition coach in Montreal, is that, with a little advance planning and careful choosing, you can indulge without too much guilt.

She estimates that the average weight gain during the holidays is three to five pounds.

"When faced with so many opportunities to consume foods that contain more fat, more salt or more sugar, and may be less nutrient dense than usual, many people are overwhelmed. Since many of these goodies are only offered up once a year, the option is clear — eat the goodies."

Arrey recommends you accept that there will be temptations, and choose between them. For example, skip the eggnog but have one dessert, if dessert is your thing.

Holiday tips

Here are Arrey's tips for navigating the holiday season:

► Slow down Enjoy all aspects of your meal — savour the taste and texture of your food and the conversation going on around you.

► Stay the course Eat your favourite foods, and drop the ones you eat just because they are there. "Plum pudding only comes around once a year, so if you enjoy it, leave room for it by not eating the mashed potatoes. Why waste calories on foods you do not like?" says Arrey.

► Snack Eat a snack between meals. This helps you eat smaller amounts at meals. Try a source of protein, such as nuts or cheese, along with fruit or vegetables and dip.

► Rule When putting food on your plate, remember the one-quarter, one-half, one-quarter diagram: Try to fill half of your plate with vegetables and only one-quarter of the plate with grains or potatoes and one-quarter of the plate with meat and alternatives. "Unless they are drowning in butter or sauce, vegetables are a great way to include great taste, nutrients and not too many calories."

► You can still enjoy the seasonal foods and not hurt your waistline.

BE STRONG. We often spend so much time focusing on our shortcomings, but today, right now, focus on one of your many strengths.

Exactly what is a strength? Maybe you're good with numbers, or good with people, or good with children.

Maybe you're a problem solver, an inventor or an organizer. Anything that comes naturally to you is a strength and a gift. MERRY CHRISTMAS! HAPPY HOLIDAYS! BEST OF THE SEASON!

At this time of the year, it is always joyous to think of the time we will spend with family and friends enjoying the best the Christmas season has to offer! For those of you celebrating Hanukkah, we hope your celebrations are special for you as well!

And of course, many of our readers will not be celebrating either event at this time of year. We hope that 2011 has been a wonderful year for you and wish you all the best for 2012 as well.

For the past number of years, we have thoroughly enjoyed taking the time to educate you on the importance of your dental health. It has been very rewarding to have many of our existing patients ask us questions about the information they read in our articles. It confirmed to us that we were providing a valuable educational service.

It was also very gratifying to have new patients come to our doors, motivated by what they read in the Metro. Many of these new patients had not visited a dentist for some time before our articles motivated them to take action. Seeing their new found commitment to their oral health makes us feel proud of our positive contribution.

Just as importantly, we know that many of you used the information in our articles to ask questions of your own dentists. We are only too happy to share that information as our mission with these articles was to educate and improve the oral health of everyone, not just our own patients!

Thank you for acting upon your newfound knowledge to better look after your health! We are certain your family appreciates it as well as health and happiness, for ourselves and our loved ones, are the best gifts we can ever receive!

In the New Year, we will be making some changes in the manner in which we help inform you about important aspects of your oral health. We will continue our partnership with Metro and you will be able to look for our ads here. However, our regular column will appear every week on our website at www.rideaudental.ca.

Here you will be able to access a comprehensive library of all of our past articles, as well as our future articles regarding optimal dental health.

So please continue to look for us and stay informed...because remaining informed about your oral health is a healthy habit...and healthy habits lead to healthy lives.

One of the soups of the day was tomato bisque. It had chunks of tomatoes and was perked with allspice. Though not overly creamy, it was smooth and rich.

I ordered the special panini of the day, pressed to order: Turkey with spicy cranberry salsa.

Pieces of turkey from a freshly-roasted bird were sandwiched between fresh Italian bread and slathered with sweet but tongue-tickling cranberry salsa.

It was a perfect combination of flavours.

For dessert, I couldn't resist chocolate cheesecake decorated with caramel and maraschino cherries. It reminded me of Nanaimo bars in cheesecake form and was worth the splurge.

The people behind Lazy Pickle are by no means lazy. They make everything from scratch. And it shows.

Cheers to a new class of meatballs

Meatballs are a great holiday entertaining food. They are homey, well-loved and easy to make ahead of time.

But let's face it — they've been done. They've been done with ketchup. They've been done with beer and barbecue sauce. And they've been done with creamy gravies.

So how about something a little different? Something that adds some zing to the appetizer offerings.

Sweet, smoky with a kick of heat is always a great combination for holiday appetizers. This recipe has all that, plus a do-ahead sensibility.

The given directions are for making the meatballs on the stove, but if you prefer you can transfer them to a slow cooker to keep them warm for your party.

You also can keep them warm in a Dutch oven over a stovetop burner set on low.

Use toothpicks or little wooden serving skewers in order to serve the Cranberry Chipotle Meatballs at your get-together as an easy — but oh so different — hors d'oeuvre.

Cranberry Chipotle Meatballs

Preparation:

- 1 Coat a large rimmed baking sheet with cooking spray.
- 2 In a skillet heat oil over medium-high heat. Add garlic and onion and sauté for about 5 minutes or until soft and translucent; set aside to cool.
- 3 In a large bowl, mix together cooked onion mixture, beef, pork, salt, black pepper, chipotle pepper, adobo sauce, vinegar, eggs and breadcrumbs. Form mixture into 2.5-cm (1-inch) balls. Arrange balls on prepared baking sheet. Bake in 220 C (425 F) for 10 minutes or until cooked through and browned.

- 4 Sauce: Meanwhile, in a saucepan combine cranberry sauce, chili sauce and adobo sauce and bring to a simmer over medium heat.

- 5 When meatballs are done, transfer to a shallow bowl or rimmed platter. Pour sauce over meatballs and toss gently to coat and serve.

MANNERS TAKE TIME, PRACTICE

What is appropriate to expect from children with regards to table manners and etiquette? Myself, I always taught my children well, but I am appalled at the lack of manners of so many children these days.
Sticky for Manners

Dear Sticky for Manners,
Well, the world has changed and children's manners aren't what they used to be. One of every parent's nightmares is taking their children in public and being embarrassed from their lack of social skills. So let's review what is appropriate social behaviour.

Children should be taught manners and social skills from a very young age. As soon as they are able to start to reason and understand verbal language you can start with a simple please and thank you.

Once children start to get older (five to eight), learning table manners becomes important.

Understanding how to correctly use a knife and fork at the table, how to leave the table, drink from a glass, etc.

Now for those parents who think you can do this the night before a family event, that is where you are going wrong; turning these skills into everyday habits is the objective.

Some of the reasons you need to practice this at the family kitchen table every night are because:

1. You must practice a new skill for 21 days to start a pattern.

2. It takes 100 days for this new pattern to become automatic.

This is why you must begin and practice manners daily at home. Remember, good manners are not just for when you have guests or are entertaining; manners are to be applied every day amongst family members, friends and work.

Guide to peacocking

- Plenty of holiday parties to attend the next few weeks?
- Read on to learn how to become the life of the party

Stressed out about the office Christmas party or your neighbour's drop-in bash for New Year's Eve?

You could send your regrets, or show up and hide in the corner while pretending to text all night.

Or you could go the other way and dazzle the guests with your outfit, wit and charm. Here's a guide to peacocking — or how to be the life of the party.

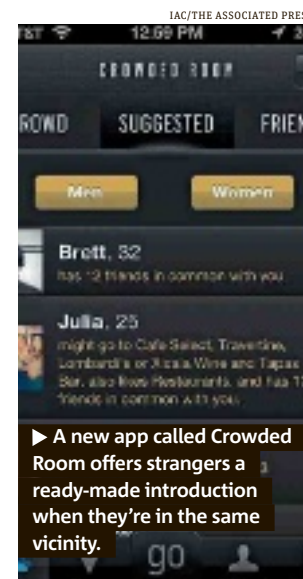

DRESS

"Wear something festive: A colourful tie, an interesting pin or fashionable shoes are great conversation starters," said Jacqueline Whitmore, an etiquette expert and author of Poised For Success. "People tend to gravitate towards people who stand out or look interesting."

Christie Nightingale, principal of Premier Match, an upscale matchmaking firm, agreed, saying: "Stand out from the crowd by wearing a bright colour, like red or emerald green, not black."

CONVERSATION

Have a list of easy questions in mind as conversation starters: "How's it going? Who do you know here? How did you get here?"

Jokes can work, but be careful not to offend.

You could also brush up on current events, but be aware that most people would rather chat about subjects that are "easy and fun instead of getting so serious."

INTRODUCTIONS AND COMPLIMENTS

"Walk around, get a solid idea of who's in the house and side right up to someone who seems interesting — maybe they're wearing a bright sweater, or a fun hat — and give them a compliment," said Sian-

Pierre Regis, founder of the Swagger: New York style website. "Then introduce yourself."

TOASTS

For an office party, "another way to stand out, which takes a lot of practice and preparation, is to offer a very brief, humble toast, thanking your co-workers, colleagues, and the executive team for being great co-workers, colleagues, team, etc.," said Matt Eventoff, owner of Princeton Public Speaking, which trains executives for public appearances.

At a social gathering in someone's home, a simple toast might thank the hosts for bringing everyone together with good food, drinks and company.

"Give them your Mona Lisa smile," said Suzanne Zazulak Pedro, an executive coach and founder of The Protocol Praxis. Not a fake Pan Am stewardess smile, as she put it, but a close-lipped half-smile, "like you have a secret. It will not only make people wonder what you are up to, but it will also help initiate conversations."

On a quest to make new friends

Making friends shouldn't be complicated. We've been doing it since we were kids, right?

But for many of us, as a new book points out, "friend-making is not the natural process it used to be."

Chicago transplant and journalist Rachel Bertsche discovers this the hard way when she finds herself without close friends to speak of, two years after moving.

She comes up with a game plan to change her situation — go on one friend date a week over the next year, 52 in all.

MWF Seeking BFF: My

Yearlong Search for a New Best Friend chronicles Bertsche's quest. If reading about several dozen meet-ups sounds like a drag, it can be at times. But more often than not, Bertsche's skill as a writer and the myriad ways she finds potential dates keep things interesting.

She asks current friends to set her up, approaches prospects at her yoga class and neighbourhood restaurant, signs up for a speed-friending event, consults a friend matchmaker and, demonstrating she's willing to give anything a shot, even tries a Rent-a-Friend website.

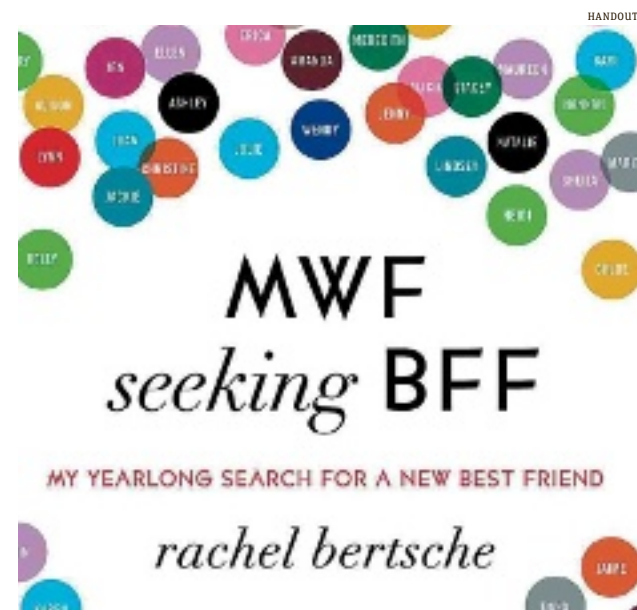

The book is also peppered with intriguing research on topics like what makes friends click, how many friends we need and the health benefits of having friends. ("Researchers found that having low levels of connection is comparable to smoking 15 cigarettes a day or being an alcoholic, more harmful than not exercising and twice as harmful as obesity.")

The audience for this kind of a book is probably limited. But Bertsche seems to have a clear idea of her target audience. She gives no explanation when referring to the likes of Regina George (the lead bully in the 2004 movie Mean Girls), but feels the need to include this parenthetical comment when mentioning Gallup: "You know, the company that conducts all those polls."

For all the book's weaknesses — the gimmicky premise, the repetitive comparisons between her old friends and new friends, the sometimes tiring accounts of dates — a reader cannot help but root for Bertsche, cheer her successes and consider trying out some of her ideas.

FA-LA-LA-LA-AAH: PAY OFF XMAS DEBT

FUN AND FRUGAL

LESLEY SCORGIE
MONEY@METRONews.CA

Happy holidays fun and frugal readers!

Have you been avoiding bringing in the mail?

Did you stash that dreaded credit card bill in a 'don't look now' drawer?

Most Canadian households have wreaked major havoc on their credit cards this holiday season.

Starting now, you need a plan to pay off your credit card debt as fast as possible so as to avoid massive interest charges in the new year.

The best way to deal with holiday credit card debt is to get organized. Figure out who you owe money to, how much and the interest rate.

Next, scrounge up an extra $10 or $20 per week and pay a little extra on the highest interest credit and store card bills.

By making extra payments as often as you can, you're tackling the principle portion of the debt more often which translates into less interest being accumulated.

If you're stumped on where to find an extra $20; cut back on cell-phone plans or coffees and sell unwanted household items on Kijiji.

If you've got multiple credit card balances you can also save money by consolidating them into a small loan with a fixed term and repayment plan.

Though interest rates and payment flexibility are tempting, do not use credit lines as a pseudo-consolidation loan.

Credit lines don't have a collapsing balance and Canadians tend to borrow back all the payments they make toward the balance.

Credit lines were originally designed to help home owners build equity; not to mask overspending problems.

While you're paying off your debts, don't rack up any more.

You only need one credit card and I would recommend reducing the credit limit as you pay down the balance.

A debt-free lifestyle translates into way less stress. So, make it your New Year's resolution to pay off expensive consumer debt as quickly as possible.

Beware online fraudsters

In this season of joy and giving and shopping who wants to think about getting ripped off?

But in this era of cyber predators we must take as much care with information as you would with your wallet in a place frequented by pickpockets.

The Financial Consumer Agency of Canada (fcac.gc.ca) urges everyone to be a little extra vigilant during the holidays, since we are often rushed and trying to do two things at once.

Justin Hwang, associate vice president of Fraud Management at TD Canada Trust, says that bogus websites can easily snare the unwary. He notes that website addresses beginning with https:// are usually secure. But if you update your antivirus soft-

Cyber crooks

Here are a few ways to protect yourself. Be sure to share these tips with your children as they are the fastest growing group of online consumers.

- ▶ Don't shop online using public or unsecured wireless Internet.
- ▶ Be cautious about sharing too much information on social networking sites.
- ▶ Be sure you know a site is secure before entering personal information.
- ▶ Use virus or spyware protection software and update it regularly.
- ▶ Avoid using the automatic password or personal information log in function on your computer.

▶ Watch out for bogus websites.

and bank statements more often than normal to catch any unauthorized activity.

When you are short of time it's tempting to hand over your credit or debit card to a child to make certain purchases for you.

Aside from the fact that such use violates your contract with the bank, even the most responsible kids don't necessarily understand the importance of being vigilant about fraud.

But, of course, many youngsters these days have their own debit cards and may be authorized users on a parental card.

Watch them as they use these cards and coach them about ensuring their card is always close at hand.

They shouldn't put it on the cashier's counter where others in line can see it. And keeping their PIN one giant secret is vital. I recommend kids change their PIN every six months or so.

Have a wonderful and secure holiday.

Black Friday blues

Ah, the warm feelings of the holidays: Comfort and joy. Good cheer. And buyer's remorse.

People who rushed to snag discounts on TVs, toys and other gifts are quickly returning them for much-needed cash. The shopping season started out strong for stores, but it looks like the spending binge has given way to a holiday hangover. Return rates spiked when the Great Recession struck and have stayed high. For every dollar stores take in this holiday season, they'll have to give back 9.9 cents in returns, up from 9.8 last year, according to the U.S. National Retail Federation's survey of 110 retailers. In better economic times, it's about 7 cents.

Senators preview

Buffalo at Ottawa
7:30 p.m.
TV: TSN

The Senators (15-14-4) are one point behind Buffalo (16-13-3) in the Northeast Division. The Sabres lost 3-2 in overtime to Ottawa in Buffalo last Tuesday. Ryan Miller was pulled twice in an 8-3 loss to Pittsburgh on Saturday, once after allowing three goals on seven shots to start the first period, and again in the second after allowing two goals on eight shots. Miller has allowed four or more goals in three of his six starts since returning from a concussion.

Turris set to start fresh with Senators

► 'I'm just glad it's in the past,' 22-year-old says of struggles in Phoenix

With a throng of reporters waiting at his stall, newly acquired Ottawa Senators forward Kyle Turris got his first taste of playing in a Canadian market after several years in the desert.

"I don't think I've seen this many cameras for a number of years now," Turris said Monday after skating with his Ottawa teammates for the first time.

"It's a lot different pressure but I'm ready for it."

The Burnaby, B.C., native was acquired from the Phoenix Coyotes on Saturday in exchange for defenceman David Rundblad and a second-round pick. Turris will make his Sens debut Tuesday at home against the Buffalo Sabres.

Turris is looking for a fresh start after a falling out with the Coyotes organization this year. He was Phoenix's third overall pick in the 2007 draft and scored 25 points in 65 games in 2010-11, but missed most of this season after holding out for a new contract.

The Coyotes refused to blink. A deal was finally reached on Nov. 22, but since then Turris has only played in six games and hasn't registered a point.

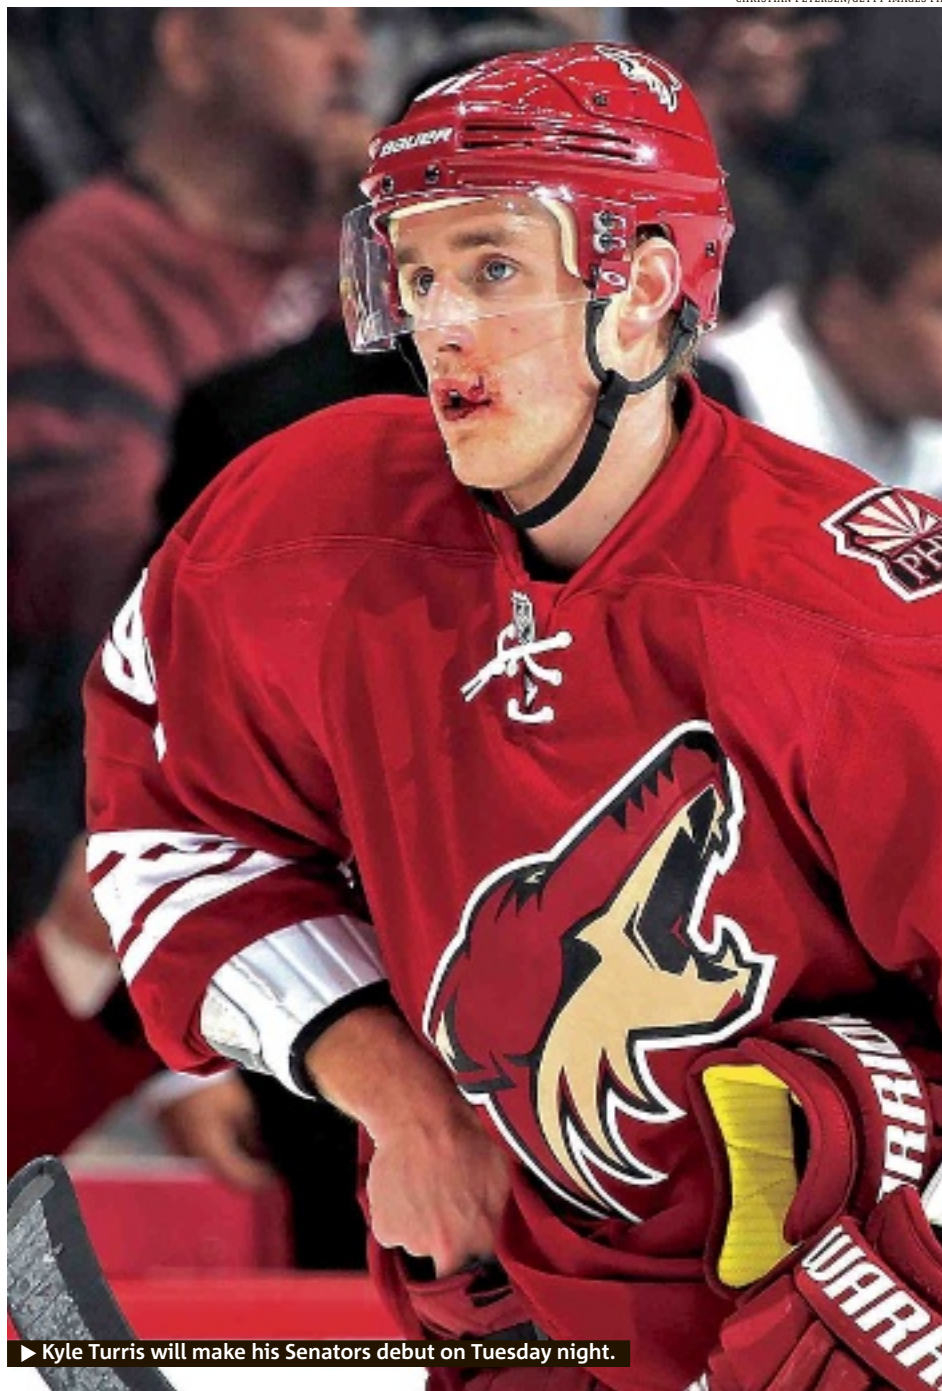

"It was real tough," Turris said. "I mean, it's something that was a frustrating situation and I'm just glad it's in the past and moved on."

Turris is expected to centre Nick Foligno and Erik Condra.

"We hope he'll solidify that second-line centre position that we've been searching for and not only for this season, but for seasons to come," said Ottawa head coach Paul MacLean. "I think he's a piece that makes us better and for down the road as well."

Turris doesn't know much about his new teammates, but he did room with Jason Spezza at the 2008 World Championships.

"They've got a great mix of the older guys — Spezza and (Daniel) Alfredsson — and at the same time a real young group, so it was a fun practice this morning, guys joking around and lots of energy and I'm looking forward to jumping in," said Turris.

Alfredsson liked what he saw at practice.

"You could tell right away he's got a good shot," said the Sens captain. "Hopefully we can make him fit in here quickly."

Turris has been a friend of Ottawa prospect Patrick Wiercioch since childhood.

Wiercioch is currently with the Sens' AHL affiliate in Binghamton, dealing with a throat injury.

"I actually called him after I found out about the trade, and he's been going through a tough time the last week and a half, two weeks, and I've been talking to him every day," said Turris. "But he's recovering fast and I told him how excited I was to be in the same organization as him."

Kings keep it light as they wait for Sutter

Despite being on the verge of getting their third coach in about a week, it's not all doom and gloom around the Los Angeles Kings these days.

In fact, there were plenty of smiles before Monday's game against the Maple Leafs in Toronto. Perhaps it was a sign that interim coach John Stevens was successful in his bid to relax his players with an ice cream run following Sunday's skate.

"We had a little challenge at the end of practice and we stopped at the Dairy Queen on the way home and losers had to buy the winners an ice cream of their choice," said Stevens. "Just something fun, something to occupy their time."

The Kings have been playing under a cloud for a month, resulting in coach Terry Murray's dismissal last week. Stevens is filling in as contract details are finalized with Darryl Sutter, who will take over as head coach later this week according to a league source.

It's an unusual situation — to say the least — but one the players seem to support.

"I think (GM) Dean (Lombardi) might have handled it right in not going behind Terry's back and try to look for a head coach," said forward Mike Richards.

"He's a smart guy, we trust his instincts and trust what he's doing with the team." THE CANADIAN PRESS

"I think that everyone is so down emotionally that they're not focusing on their game and playing their best. Finally when we get over that hump, we should be fine."

Habs' coach contretemps continues

► Canadiens owner issues statement amid controversy over new bench boss who can't speak French

The owner of the Montreal Canadiens was forced to issue a public statement Monday amid an explosive clash between hockey and language.

For weeks Quebec has been awash in reports of the perceived erosion of French-language rights, with constant news about companies failing to provide services or hire employees who speak the province's majority language.

Enter the Montreal Canadiens, perhaps Quebec's most cherished institution.

The team once known as the Flying Frenchmen now has almost no francophone players. And on the weekend, it did something that triggered a firestorm of controversy in Quebec — it hired a coach who speaks zero French.

The hiring of Randy Cunneyworth was enough to prompt calls from nationalist fringe groups for a boycott of products related to the Habs. One political commentator even suggested local hockey journalists should refuse to address Cunneyworth in English.

And Quebec's entire political class predictably weighed in, with politicians of every stripe calling the move unacceptable.

Habs owner Geoff Molson responded with a statement, crafted so cautiously it could have been penned by a political speechwriter.

In it, Molson performed a delicate two-step. First he explained why Cunneyworth was the right man for the job, then in the next paragraph stressed how important French is to the organization.

Molson explained that Cunneyworth was hired because he is talented and also, as the team's assistant coach, is in the best position to step in immediately and help the team win.

Cunneyworth was hired with a unique title — as interim coach for the rest of the season.

"The action was taken to remedy the situation without further delay," Molson said. "Randy Cunneyworth is a qualified and experienced coach who has earned the respect of the players and everyone within the organisation."

Molson pointed out that the position will be re-evaluated at the end of the season.

He said language will be a factor when, after the season, the team has to hire a permanent coach. He said finding a coach who can win is the main priority, but language ability will also count.

Made in USA—Sweatshop Free

American Apparel does vertically integrated manufacturing, distribution and retail like nobody else in the clothing industry. We produce more than 1 million garments each week at our sweatshop-free factory, where 6,000 skilled industrial workers receive fair wages and have access to healthcare and benefits.

Every aspect of American Apparel's operation is inspired by our Canadian heritage, with a commitment to creativity, craftsmanship, progressive thinking and fair business practices that is distinctly Canadian.
